Fans attending Miner football games now have beautiful surroundings to watch Miner football. After playing its home games only in the daylight since the start of the program, the Miners have played under the lights during each of the last five seasons at refurbished Jackling Field at Allgood-Bailey Stadium.

The facility was renovated after the 2000 season, thanks to a gift from alumnus and former Miner player Keith Bailey and his wife, Pat. The couple’s $1.5 million donation led to the construction of lights, a new concession and restroom facility for the stadium, as well as an all-weather track for the university’s track and field program. In the summer of 2006, the locker room facilities were renovated with additional plans for upgrades at the facility.

During the groundbreaking ceremony in October 2000, UMR officials announced that the stadium complex would be named Allgood-Bailey Stadium in honor of retired UMR coach Dewey Allgood. Bailey, a 1964 graduate of UMR who served as chairman, president and chief executive officer of The Williams Companies Inc. in Tulsa, says Allgood was a major influence during Bailey’s years at UMR.

Allgood spent 40 years as a coach at the university and was the Miners’ head football coach when the facility opened for play in 1967.

The stadium complex, which was built as part of a package with the Gale Bullman Multi-Purpose Building (which stands east of the stadium), is in its 40th year as the home of the Miners.

The stadium was opened in 1967 and retained the name of the old field which hosted Miner football from 1915 to 1966. It was named for Daniel Cowan Jackling, an alumnus who donated $5,000 to construct the original Jackling Field which stood just north of Bishop Street. The location is now the site of several campus buildings near the Curtis Laws Wilson Library. A plaque on campus between the Humanities/Social Science and Math/Computer Science buildings marks the spot where the original field was located.

The facility seats 8,000 spectators, with a steel grandstand on the east side and another set of bleachers on the opposite side. A dressing room facility, which includes locker rooms, meeting rooms, storage rooms and offices, is located at the south end of the stadium. The 810-square foot stadium press box stands atop the west stands.

The first game in the facility was played in 1967 before the stadium was completed. A total of 5,000 temporary bleachers used during the first year and the complex was completed by the start of the 1969 season.

The 73rd Missouri General Assembly provided $2 million for the construction project in 1965. Construction was performed by the Maggi Construction Company, Inc., of Rolla. In the summer of 1998, a new grass playing field was installed by Munie Outdoor Services of Caseyville, Ill., the same firm which installed the grass baseball field at St. Louis’ Busch Stadium II. Maggi Inc., and CSE Enterprises were the lead contractors during the 2001 stadium renovation.

The University of Missouri-Rolla is in its 136th year as one of the nation’s premier universities for science and technology. But while UMR’s reputation has been for the quality of its engineering program, it is quickly becoming a well-rounded institution that now offers undergraduate and graduate degree programs in 35 fields.

UMR is located in a picturesque area of Missouri in the wooded hills of south central Missouri near the Ozarks. The 284-acre campus is located nearly halfway between St. Louis and Springfield, Mo., but within a reasonable drive of a number of state parks, lakes and several of Missouri’s well-known vineyards, not to mention being a short walk away from the downtown area of a town ranked as one of the best 100 small towns in the United States in Norm Crampton’s The 100 Best Small Towns in America.

The campus itself has an enrollment of over 5,500 students, with a student-faculty ratio of 14 to 1. UMR is one of four campuses that comprise the University of Missouri system. The university, founded as the Missouri School of Mines in 1870 as the first engineering school west of the Mississippi River, has written the book on education in science and engineering and is broadening its scope in the 21st century.

While the university began as a mining school, the university has also prepared its students for leadership roles in engineering, science and liberal arts. UMR can boast of over 1,000 entrepreneurs among its graduates and hundreds of others in corporate leadership positions.

In addition, the university has broadened its academic scope beyond engineering as it now has programs for its students in business, education (pre-elementary and secondary), English, history and various other pre-professional fields such as pre-law, pre-medicine and pre-nursing as well as speech and media studies. But as far as the engineering fields go, UMR offers a wide range of options for students to go into. The university offers more than a dozen different engineering programs for its students to study.

A number of UMR graduates have gone on to have great success. Included among the alumni are Mervin Kelly (1914), whose work on amplifying tubes led to improved long-distance communication; George Mueller (1936), who is credited with being the driving force behind the first lunar landing in 1969; Ted Weise (1967), who formerly served as the president of FedEx; and Gary Forsee (1972), the chief executive officer of Sprint. In addition, three UMR graduates have been part of NASA’s space shuttle program: Tom Akers (1973), who was part of the space shuttle team that retrieved a satellite in space in 1992 and is now a member of the faculty at UMR; Janet Kavandi (1982) and Sandra Hall Magnus (1986).

Athletics at UMR

The University of Missouri-Rolla is a member of NCAA Division II and the Great Lakes Valley Conference in all of its sports except for football and swimming. The football team is playing as an NCAA Division II independent, while the swimming team is aligned with the New South Intercollegiate Swimming Conference that started competition in the 2005-06 season. The overall athletics program consists of eight men's and seven women's sports.

The university has shown its success at the national level both on the field and in the classroom. UMR has had teams finish among the top 10 at the national level in 10 of the last 11 seasons and the school has won three NCAA national championships on an individual basis in swimming over the past six seasons. UMR's 200-freestyle relay team won back-to-back titles at the NCAA Division II Swimming and Diving Championships in 2001 and 2002, while the 400-yard freestyle relay team also won a national title in 2002. UMR posted its highest finish ever in the Director's Cup standings for Division II during the 2004-05 school year.

In the classroom, UMR student-athletes have won 41 Academic All-America awards as awarded by CoSIDA and its program sponsors and 120 academic all-district awards over the past 14 years. In addition, numerous teams and individuals have been honored for their success as student-athletes by their various national organizations. As a member of the MIAA from 1935 through 2005, UMR athletic teams won or shared 35 league championships. The university also honors its top student-athletes and teams over the years in its Athletic Hall of Fame; 116 members and nine teams have been inducted. More Facts About UMR

The average class size at UMR is 27 students per class, with a 14-to-1 student-to-faculty ratio. The average class size for laboratory classes is 16-to-1.

UMR has students from 44 states and 63 foreign countries.

There are more than 200 student organizations on campus.

The American Association of Engineering Societies Inc. ranked UMR among the top 25 universities nationwide for the number of undergraduate engineering degrees awarded annually.

UMR hosts over 450 major corporations on its campus during the year to visit the campus and recruit graduates. These corporations conducted over 5,400 interviews for full-time and summer positions, with 96 percent of those students reporting being employed in their field of study or enrolled in graduate school shortly after graduation.

UMR has the second-highest proportion of engineering majors of any university in the United States, according to U.S. News and World Report’s 11th annual “America’s Best Colleges” issue.

U.S. News and World Report also rated UMR as one of the best national universities in the areas of engineering and science.

Prospective UMR students have the opportunity to take part in the cooperative education program, which gives students an opportunity to get hands-on experience in their field of study. Approximately 500 students take part in this program on an annual basis, with many of them returning to the company after graduation.

The mid-range ACT scores for incoming freshmen at UMR ranged from 25 and 30, while the mid-range SAT scores ranged between 1140 and 1350. The mid-range score is the middle 50 percent of the new students enrolling at UMR; some students scored above and below those ranges.

More than 75 percent of UMR students receive financial aid in the form of scholarships, grants, loans and work-study.

The average starting salary for a UMR graduate is over $47,000. Most UMR students have job offers two to three months prior to graduation.

UMR was the first university to be awarded the prestigious Missouri Quality Award in 1995.

UMR’s Environmental Management System is one of the leading programs in the nation. It is the first institution in the United States (and second in the world) to obtain ISO 14001 certification, a widely accepted international EMS status.

UMR had the winning entry in Sunrayce 1999 and the 2003 American Solar Challenge, a solar car race involving many institutions in the United States and Canada. UMR also finished third in the World Solar Challenge in Australia in October 1999 and first in the 2000 Formula Sun-Grand Prix. The team finished second in the 2001 American Solar Challenge race from Chicago to Los Angeles, the same route it took in its victory in 2003.

In 2004, UMR’s solar car, human-powered vehicle and men’s and women’s mucking teams placed first in their various student competitions.

Includes information from the 2004 UMR viewbook.
The University of Missouri-Rolla is proud of its academic reputation as one of the premier institutions for science and technology. The results are shown in the consistent strong performance of the student-athletes on the UMR campus.

During the 2005-06 academic year, a total of 229 student-athletes at UMR finished with a 3.0 or better grade point average, a total that included 53 from the football team. The university could also boast of a high number of selections to the academic teams in the past year that were released by the Great Lakes Valley Conference, Independent Football Alliance and New South Intercollegiate Swimming Conference.

A total of 97 UMR student-athletes were selected to the GLVC’s All-Academic team for the 2005-06 school year, the fourth-best total in the 14-team conference. In addition, the UMR athletics program had 17 of its student-athletes finish the past academic year with a 4.0 grade point average.

The academic honors also extend to the national level, as three UMR student-athletes, including Phil Shin from the football team, earned ESPN The Magazine Academic All-America honors. A total of 11 individuals were named to their selected Academic All-District teams during the 2005-06 season. UMR has had 12 Academic All-America selections over the past two seasons and since 2000, UMR has had 20 Academic All-America selections, which is tied for the fourth-most in NCAA Division II.

He was an all-region selection by Daktronics and Football Gazette and also earned first-team honors from the Independent Football Alliance.
Kirby Cannon will begin his eighth season as the head football coach at UMR after leading the Miners to their most successful season in 20 years during the 2005 campaign.

The Miners ended up with a winning record for the first time since 1985 as they recorded a 7-4 record in their first season playing as an NCAA Division II independent. During the year, UMR used its record-setting offense to beat not only two teams from the NCAA Division I-AA ranks, but teams from two other NCAA Division II conferences.

UMR had the fourth-best passing offense in the nation in Division II last fall and set new modern day records for points scored with 379 and in yards per game with 433.8.

Cannon came to UMR in 1999 with the task of rebuilding a Miner program that went through a difficult stretch during the 1990s. The Miners went 3-8 in 2004, which included a victory over No. 23-ranked Central Missouri State, while facing a schedule that included three teams that made the NCAA Division II playoffs. The Miners showed annual improvement in their play during Cannon's tenure while playing in the powerful Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association through the 2004 season.

Cannon, who had been an assistant coach at Western Illinois University prior to his selection as the Miners' head coach in December 1998, played against the Miners while at Southwest Missouri State University (now Missouri State University) and coached against UMR as an assistant at Truman State University.

A native of Alexandria, Mo., Cannon faced the Miners as a quarterback at MSU, where he received his bachelor's degree in physical education in 1981. He began his coaching career that year as well as the defensive coordinator at Ozark High School in southwest Missouri and helped lead that team to its first playoff appearance in school history.

After that two-year stint, Cannon went into the collegiate ranks as a graduate assistant coach at Iowa State University with his primary duties being his work with the tight ends and special teams. Cannon, who also completed work on his master's degree at ISU in 1985, spent one of those two years as the head coach of the junior varsity program and one year as acting recruiting coordinator.

His next position was as the defensive coordinator at North Central College in Naperville, Ill., where he helped a struggling program improve to a 19-18-1 mark over the next four years -- the school's best four-year record in 30 seasons. That helped him get the position of defensive backs coach at Northeast Missouri State University (now Truman State) in 1989. He was elevated in 1993 to defensive coordinator.

While at Truman, Cannon also served as recruiting coordinator and helped bring in players that led the Bulldogs to a record of 42-22 over a six-year span and to three appearances in the NCAA Division II playoffs. Truman State finished second to Division II power Pittsburg State in the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association in each of the playoff years.

When Bulldog head coach Eric Holm left Truman State after the 1994 season, Cannon followed him to Northern Michigan University to serve in the same roles for the next two years. Northern Michigan had winning seasons during both of those years and had a two-year record of 14-6.

Prior to his arrival at UMR, Cannon was an assistant coach at Western Illinois University, primarily coaching the offensive backs. Over that span, WIU was ranked second in NCAA Division I-AA in 1997 and reached the national semifinals in 1998, falling in that round to eventual runner-up Georgia Southern.

While at MSU, Cannon played quarterback for the Bears’ football team and pitched for the baseball team. He held the school record for career pitching wins (25) until it was broken in 2003 by Philadelphia Phillies draft choice Brad Ziegler. He received his bachelor’s degree in physical education from the university in 1981.

At UMR, Cannon will work on the defensive side of the ball for the fourth straight season after working with the offensive backs during his first three seasons at the helm of the Miner program.

Cannon and his wife, Lisa, have one son (Josh).
Marc Kolb enters his fifth year as the Miners' offensive coordinator and second as assistant head coach after a highly successful three-year stint as offensive coordinator at Fairfield University. Last fall, the Miners fielded the fourth-best passing attack in NCAA Division II as it averaged 327.4 yards per game and scored more points than any Miner team since before World War I. UMR posted a school record 433.8 yards per game on offense in 2005.

During the last four years, the Miners have set numerous offensive records, putting 27 new individual and 15 new team records in the books during the 2005 season. UMR has been one of the top passing teams in Division II over the last three seasons, as it also ranked third in the nation in passing in 2004 and has scored 97 touchdowns through the air since the start of the 2003 season.

Kolb came to UMR after a four-year stint at Fairfield, where he started as the defensive line coach in 1998. He switched to the offensive side a year later as he became the offensive coordinator and became the team's assistant head coach in the 2001 season. In the three seasons Kolb served as offensive coordinator, the Stags averaged 34.5 points per game. Fairfield scored 37.1 points a game in 1999, which ranked 12th in NCAA Division I-AA, then moved to fifth the next year when it scored 38.7 points a contest. In his third year as offensive coordinator, Fairfield averaged 27.3 points a game under a new head coach. In that span, Fairfield set or tied 78 school records.

He has coached offensive units that have finished among the top teams in Division I-AA in several offensive categories, including rushing, passing and total offense. The Stags averaged 406.7 yards of total offense in that span.

A native of Seminole, Fla., Kolb earned his bachelor's degree at Brown University in 1994 and entered the coaching ranks in 1995 at Curry College in Massachusetts. In 1997, Kolb moved on to Framingham State to serve as the offensive coordinator and offensive line coach for one season before joining the Fairfield staff. Kolb and his wife, Lisa, have two sons (Matthew and William) and one daughter (Hannah).

Travis Boulware is beginning his 20th season on the Miner staff as the defensive backfield coach. He came to UMR in 1987 from Washburn University, where he served as the defensive backs coach. In 1986, Washburn's defense ranked first against the pass in the Central States Intercollegiate Conference. While coaching the defensive backs for a majority of his tenure at UMR, Boulware coached the running backs during the 1997 and 1998 seasons. He returned to the secondary in 1999.

Boulware, a 1982 graduate of Tennessee Technological University, played defensive back for the school's football team for two seasons. Prior to that, he spent two years at Chowan Junior College in North Carolina. Boulware also received his master's degree from Tennessee Tech.

A native of High Point, N.C., Boulware also served as UMR's baseball coach for 13 seasons from 1991-2003. The Miners were 20-19 in the 2003 season, their second winning season in his final three years as head coach. UMR also finished as runners-up in the MIAA Tournament to NCAA Division II World Series participant Central Missouri State in 1997.

Erik Kruppe starts his third season on the Miner coaching staff as the linebackers coach, the same position he held while spending the previous three seasons as an assistant coach at Truman State University. Kruppe also serves as the team's strength and conditioning coach.

Kruppe is a 1999 graduate of Illinois Wesleyan University, where he played linebacker for four seasons. He earned his master's degree from Northeastern Illinois University two years later while coaching at North Park University in Chicago during the 1999 and 2000 seasons. He also helped coach at Maine East High School in the Chicago suburbs during the summer in 1999.

A native of Niles, Ill., Kruppe was a volunteer assistant coach at Truman in 2001 while teaching special education at Kirkville High School. He joined the Bulldogs' staff as a full-time assistant the following season, where he coached four linebackers that earned first- or second-team honors from the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association. One of those four, Tameem Yehyawi, was a second-team All-America selection the 2003 campaign. Last season, UMR linebacker Mario Gant was named as the "Defensive Player of the Year" by the Independent Football Alliance.

Bryan Johnson, a former defensive back for the Miners in the early years of Kirby Cannon's tenure at UMR, is starting his first season as a full-time member of the staff. Johnson will coach the offensive line in the 2005 season.

Johnson played cornerback for the Miners from 1999-02, posting 82 tackles and intercepting three passes during his career. All three interceptions came in the 2000 season, which included one late in a victory over Kentucky Wesleyan. Following his graduation from UMR in 2003, Johnson joined the staff as a part-time assistant and has spent the last two seasons in that role before becoming a full-time member of the staff this summer.

Johnson is from Granby, Mo., where he was an all-state, all-region and all-conference performer as a running back and defensive back. Johnson and his wife, (Lindsey), reside in Rolla.
Mark Mullin is in his 15th year as the University of Missouri-Rolla's director of athletics. This is his ninth year in which he is solely handling those duties as he stepped down as UMR's head swimming and diving coach following the 1997-98 season.

As director of athletics, Mullin has overseen a program that won four championships while it was affiliated with the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association and had numerous student-athletes win academic honors on both the conference and national levels. In the past year alone, UMR had 216 student-athletes post a grade point average of at least 3.0 and nine of them had grade point averages of 4.0. Two members of UMR's athletics program were recipients of the Ken B. Jones Awards, which was given to the top student-athlete in the MIAA. Since January 2000, UMR has had 19 Academic All-America selections, which is the fourth-highest total of any school in NCAA Division II.

On the field, UMR had 15 student-athletes earn All-America honors and a total of 39 earn all-conference laurels last year in the Miners' first season as a member of the Great Lakes Valley Conference. During the 2005-06 school year, UMR had teams qualify for the GLVC's post-season tournaments in men's soccer, women's basketball and softball, while the men's track and field team finished second at both the indoor and outdoor conference meets. UMR's swimming team posted a top 10 finish for the 10th time in the last 11 years at the NCAA Division II Championships, while the Miner football team posted its first winning season in 20 years in 2005.

Under Mullin's direction, UMR has hosted the NCAA South Central men's regional basketball tournament and MIAA men's basketball finals in 1996 and the 1999 MIAA cross country championships. He was also involved in the process that allowed UMR to move its conference affiliation to the Great Lakes Valley Conference beginning in the fall of 2005.

Mullin had served in the coaching position for 12 years in addition to his duties as athletics director; he held the dual roles for his final six years as swimming coach. As a coach, the Miners posted a 96-27 dual meet record and won seven regional championships. His final team finished third at the 1998 NCAA Division II Championships, the highest finish ever for a UMR athletic team at an NCAA championship event. That finish followed an eighth-place performance at the 1997 national meet.

Mullin was the chairman of the NCAA Division II men's and women's swimming and diving committee in the 2001-02 season — he will rejoin that committee in the 2006-07 season — and has also served terms on the men's basketball and football regional advisory committee for the region.

He completed a two-year term as the president of the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association after spending the two prior years as the conference's vice president prior to UMR's switch to the GLVC.
Dr. Jeff Cawlfield is in his fourth year as the university's faculty representative to the NCAA. He took over the duties in January 2003 following the retirement of Jack Ridley, who had served in the role for the previous three years.

Cawlfield, the associate dean in UMR's School of Mines and Metallurgy, is also a professor in geological engineering at the university. He was among several UMR professors who were recipients of the UMR Sustained Excellence in Teaching awards, which were awarded at the end of the 2003 spring semester. He has also received a number of faculty excellence awards at UMR.

After joining the UMR faculty in 1987, Cawlfield was named professor of geological engineering in 1999 and became head of the geological engineering department the following year. He moved into the role of associate dean in 2001. Cawlfield received his bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Washington State University in 1981 and then completed work on his master's and doctorate degrees at the University of California-Berkeley.

Cawlfield is also an Honorary Knight of St. Patrick, an honor he received in 2002 along with a group that included Dr. Manuel Pacheco prior to his retirement from the University of Missouri system. He was selected by Pacheco to attend the first UM Leadership Development Program during the 2000-01 academic year.

Sarah Moore, is in her fourth year as the assistant director of athletics at UMR, where she also serves as the senior women’s administrator and director of UMR’s intramural program.

Moore spent 13 seasons as the head coach for the UMR cross country and men’s track programs and 18 seasons as the head coach of the women’s track squad before moving into the administrative position last summer. She is a 1973 graduate of Union University and is in her 27th year at UMR, where she has also coached the Lady Miner softball and tennis teams. While serving as track coach, she completed a six-year term as a member of the NCAA Track and Field committee. Before coming to UMR, Moore spent three seasons at the University of Wyoming and one at Memphis State University (now the University of Memphis).

In addition to her administrative duties within the athletics department, Moore is also the chairwoman of the Department of Physical Education and Recreation.
The 2005 football season was another record-setting campaign for the University of Missouri-Rolla, but the record that counted the most when it was over was the 7-4 mark it finished with — the team’s first winning season in 20 years.

Many of the players who had a hand in that success, including two “Player of the Year” award winners in the Independent Football Alliance, are gone, but Miner head coach Kirby Cannon feels that his squad has simply reloading for the 2006 campaign.

“We did lose some very good football players,” Cannon said. “However, we also have some very good ones coming back and some of the spots that we have to fill are going to be with experienced players. These are players that I feel are ready to step up and a lot of them have started games in the past.”

The Miners face a difficult task early in the season with four consecutive road games before the Sept. 30 home opener against Saint Joseph’s, but starting with that contest, will have five of their last seven at Allgood-Bailey Stadium. If UMR can get through the first month in good shape, a successful season can result if it can take care of business on the home turf.

Offense

UMR will have to replace quarterback Evan Gray, the IFA’s offensive player of the year, who established numerous school records for his passing. Gray tied for the NCAA Division II lead during the regular season with his 39 touchdown passes as he threw for 3,583 yards. He also finished his career with the highest touchdown pass average per game in Division II history. But the position figures to be in good hands as projected starter Mark Becker has made starts in the past and has over 1,500 career passing yards to his name.

“Normally when you lose a starter like Evan, you figure that there’s going to be a dropoff,” Cannon said. “The options that we have at that position are solid. Mark won a game on the road two years ago at Emporia State, but he will have to compete for the job like anyone else and we have two others who are really going to compete for the spot.”

The two Cannon refers to are Jason Aubrey, a redshirt freshman who played well in the spring game in April and Joe Winters, a transfer from Columbia University who comes to UMR as a graduate student — and with playing experience from the NCAA Division I-AA level.

Whomever the quarterback happens to be will have one of the top receiving corps in NCAA Division II to throw to, led by junior Ashton Gronewold and senior Brandon Landry. Gronewold, who earned honorable mention All-America honors last season and pre-season laurels this summer, caught a UMR record 75 passes for 1,080 yards and 17 touchdowns last fall and is position to break many of the school’s receiving records this year. Meanwhile, Landry hauled in 69 passes for 908 yards and nine scores in his first season at the wide receiver position.

The Miners also have experienced returners in Mike Greaving and Adam Clark, while redshirt freshman Lance Eftink and newcomers Chad Shockley — a player who earned numerous honors at nearby John F. Hodge High School — and Nathan Binder also figure to compete for spots on the outside.

UMR did lose 855-yard rusher Keenan Miller, but will likely go to a running back-by-committee system headed by returners Matt Padilla, Dallas Whitehouse. Two other players who could work their way into the mix are Northern Iowa transfer David Shields and incoming freshman Jerome Miller, who starred at the high school level in Canada.

The Miners also have some reshuffling to do on the offensive line as three all-league members of that unit have departed, but that group also appears to be in good shape with a number of experienced players figuring to be in contention for starting spots.

Ken Pearce and Steve Franklin return to tackle and guard spots, respectively, while Adam Keithly, who started several games last season, is penciled in at the other guard spot. James Smith moved from the defensive line to the offensive line and will contend for the starting role at right tackle, while talented redshirt freshman John Krumme figures as the leading contender for the starts at center.

Several others figure to compete for starting roles as well, including returner Geoff Stafford, redshirt freshmen Colin Douthit and Adam Helton and newcomers Brandon Jordan (Ouachita Baptist) and Andrew Ravadge (DeAnza College).
“This may be the most athletic offensive line we’ve had since I’ve been here,” Cannon said. “We’re fortunate that even though we’ve lost three seniors, we have plenty of experienced players ready to step into those roles. The offensive line had a terrific spring and this is an intelligent group that really likes to play.”

Defense

Even if the season totals may not have bearad it out, the Miner defense did make strides last fall. UMR did cut the opponent’s total offense total down to 4,523 yards after giving up over 6,000 in 2004, but after allowing at least 500 points in the Miners’ last two seasons as a member of the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association, the unit did cut that number nearly in half last fall. And of the 285 points it did allow, 160 of them came in three of the four losses.

“We had some very good games early in the season,” Cannon said. “What we need to do now is show improvement throughout the year and throughout each game. We have to avoid the games where we get into a downward cycle and have a hard time getting out of it.”

The Miners allowed a total of just 98 points in the first and fourth quarters of games last year, but gave up nearly twice that in the middle two quarters. Cannon is hoping that an improved front seven, especially on the defensive line, can change that trend.

UMR has only one returning starter back in Derek Drussa, who led the team in sacks (six) and tackles for a loss (10) in the 2005 campaign. Drussa posted those numbers while playing at defensive end, but will move back inside this year to a tackle spot alongside returning lettermen Dallas Massie and Patrick Akley.

At defensive end, the Miners will have sophomore Matt Loula competing for a starting role along with Chris Norgren and a pair of redshirt freshmen, Loren Severs and Nick Carter. In addition, junior college transfers Kalvin Bishop and Brandon Kessler are expected to compete for playing time along the defensive line.

Justin Butler, the top returner in terms of tackles a year ago (61), will head up the linebacker corps along with former Avian Jordan. Jordan, who played at tight end last season, moved back to defense in the spring where he was the Miners’ top tackler in his freshman and sophomore seasons. They will flank senior Gabriel Cunha, who will have to fill the vacancy left by IFA defensive player of the year Mario Gant. Cunha had a good spring session after a strong finish to the 2005 season.

Returning lettermen Keith Homco and Caleb Rangel are also expected to see plenty of playing time, while redshirt freshman Steve Edwards and newcomers Garyion Turner — from national junior college champion Glendale Community College — and Jamel Anderson also figure in the mix.

The Miners will have three starters back in the secondary in cornerbacks Jon Iglehart and Jamel Sims, while Daudi White returns for his third season at strong safety. White had one of UMR’s three interception runbacks for a touchdown last year, while Sims had a pair of pickoffs and Iglehart made 33 tackles including four behind the line of scrimmage, while serving as one of UMR’s top coveermen at his position.

Returner Reggie Pierre, newcomer Brian Gronewold and redshirt freshmen Evan Zych and Tommy Humphrey will seek to earn the starting role at free safety, while returners Robbie Woodard, Phillip Tillman and Corey Taylor will also try to earn spots in the rotation.

Special Teams

UMR will have to replace both its kicker and punter from last season and hopes to do so with one person. Tim Valencia, a transfer from San Diego Mesa College, is projected as the starter at both spots, but will be challenged by returning squadmembers Renny Dillinger and Brian Mueller.

Dan Balota returns as the long snapper after filling that role in his freshman year, while Becker will handle the holder duties for placekicks.

The Miners will have a slew of potential return men, a group that includes Landry and Gronewold. Both players had a kickoff return for a touchdown last season.

Former Miner in NFL camp this summer

Brett Fischer, who stood out for the Miners during his four-year career at UMR, is looking to make the roster of the National Football League’s Detroit Lions this summer. Fischer set UMR single-season and career records for receiving, catching 72 passes for 1,040 yards in 2004 (both marks were broken by current Miner Ashton Gronewold last year) and ending his career with a record 1,976 receiving yards. Fischer had signed with the Kansas City Chiefs as a free agent after the 2005 NFL Draft and participated in the team’s training camp, but was released by the Chiefs shortly after the start of training camp last July. The Lions are holding their training camp at their practice facility in Allen Park, Mich.

John Locke came to the UMR football program in the fall of 2002 as a highly-touted defensive lineman from Bishop McNamara High School in St. Anne, Ill. However, the program and the university suffered a loss on the morning on August 29, 2002 when a two-car accident just south of the city limits claimed the life of Locke and Patrick Roberts, another freshman student at UMR.

Locke was to be a senior on the Miner football team in the 2006 season. His parents, Thomas and Janet Locke, will be on hand and participate in the Miners’ senior day festivities when UMR hosts Kentucky Wesleyan Nov. 11 at Allgood-Bailey Stadium.

As a prep player, Locke was a first-team all-state selection and all-conference selection in the Chicago Catholic League, which earned him the opportunity to play in the Illinois Shrine Bowl following the 2001 campaign.

“John was an individual who had all of the qualities you would be looking for in a person,” said UMR head football coach Kirby Cannon. “He had a commitment and character, was a good student and had already shown leadership abilities. He made an impact on our program because of his personality.”
